OUTDOOR BOOKS AT THE LIBRARY

FINE SUMMER READING

Many Works of Interest for the Vacation Season Among Those Recently Acquired

What to read during the summer season or whether to read at all are puzzling questions in the minds of many people just now. The answer to the second question would be easy if the first could be answered satisfactorily. The book committee of the library board have been aiding materially in the solution of the problem by some of their recent acquisitions.

Fiction, nature books and those dealing with outdoor life are perhaps the classes most popular at this season. Such books as "My First Summer in the Seirra," by John Muir, "Yosemite Trails," by J. Smeaton Case, contain much that is of interest to lovers of outdoor life and are of particular interest to Californians. To anyone who has visited the regions described the books will bring pleasant memories, and they offer the best substitute for those who cannot go there. Another little book by Case is "Cone Bearing Trees of the California Mountains." It answers questions which are asked by every person who has ascended the mountain trails, concerning the classification and common names of the pines. Excellent pictures make it easy to identify them all.

Seldom are the summer stars seen to better advantage than they have been during the past week. Doubtless many people have wished for the ability to identify at least the most brilliant stars and most conspicuous constellations. A little time devoted to Sir Robert Ball's "Story of the Heavens" will enable any one to get a vast amount of enjoyment out of observing the position and movement of the stars. This book has long been a standard work, the first edition having been issued more than 25 years ago. The volume just placed on the library shelf is the revised edition of 1910, brought down to date with the multitude of advances in astronomical science which have been made since the book first appeared. Contrary to what might be expected, the text is not technical but is extremely readable, making the story of astronomical discovery as inviting as a romance.

For those who do not care for anything heavier than popular fiction there is also an abundance of material, including some of the recent "best sellers."

Many standard works of various classes are included among the recent accessions, among them several volumes of the Harvard Classics, or "Dr. Eliot's Five-Foot Shelf." Gifts of one or more volumes have been received from Mrs. Annie Rix Millitz, Mrs. F. B. Wheatley, Mrs. E. A. Wistle, Mrs. Washburn, the Theosophical Book Co., and Mr. Parker of New York. The books received since the last list appeared in the News are as follows:

NEW CITY MAP READY

City Engineer W. F. Bixby has just completed a small edition of the official city map adopted by the city fathers a few weeks ago. It shows the latest fashions in street names, real estate subdivisions and location of everything of particular interest within the city limits. If you don't know where Montecito avenue and all of Adams, Laurel or Hermosa avenues are located this map is just what you need. It even shows the new Lima Heights Tract recently subdivided by L. Dietz. Tract boundaries are made plain and all lot numbers are shown. There is a street index making it possible to locate any street by the use of marginal numbers. All public buildings and the location of various classes of business houses are shown by a similar system. These maps are 2x3 feet in size, being much more convenient for general use than the larger maps which are about seven or eight feet square. They are printed on cloth by the blue print process, making them both flexible and durable. They can be kept rolled up, or hung against the wall. Many persons who have wished for an authentic city map were kept from purchasing the old ones by the unwieldy size and heavy expense. Both objections are overcome in this case, as the maps sell for $3. Copies can be obtained at the News office, where samples can be seen at any time.

HELLO! FROM IOWA?

Our regular annual Summer Outing will be held all day, Saturday, August 12, at Long Beach, in the beautiful grounds known as Alamitos or Bixby Park. This park is a few blocks east of the pier, is only one block from the ocean, and is a cool, delightful, shady, grassy place for a picnic away from the dust and noise of the pier and gives you a chance to meet your own Iowa friends. Free coffee and lemonade will be served if you are wearing the official Iowa badge, but unless you buy our own badge, we cannot give these free. Do not buy badges others offer you.

Brings cups and spoons with your picnic dinners. There will be addresses by popular speakers in the afternoon at half past one o'clock. The county names will be put up this time so you may meet your old friends at county headquarters.

Special cars will start from the rear of the P. E. depot, in Los Angeles, and run direct to the park. Go down Sixth street to rear of the depot to take specials. If no special is ready, you can go on regular Long Beach cars.

Be sure to buy your round trip tickets to ALAMITOS BAY (Long Beach), and ask conductor for a transfer unless you are on a special Iowa car.

There will be no extra charge if you get transfer. Ask to be let off at Alamitos Park for Iowa Picnic, as soon as you transfer in Long Beach.

This picnic is yours for a jolly, good time. Keep sweet, smile often, shake with every one and see that the other fellow enjoys it, too. Hawkeyes know how to have a good time, so go to Long Beach, August 12th, meet all the others, and tell them you are glad to see them.

Pass the word along to everyone from Iowa.

WANTED: NEW POLICE FORCE

FAT JOB GOES BEGGING

Candidates for Position of Guardian of Public Peace and Morals Are Scarce

WANTED—One first-class police force for City of Sierra Madre. Must be able-minded, able-bodied, and may be married or single. Salary $6 monthly to start, with prospect of increase within a few years if diligent in service. Must be resident of Sierra Madre.

How to conduct a police force up to standards set by other city departments on the amount of $72 yearly is the problem which has long bothered the city trustees and has become acute through the resignation of George Ray from the office of marshal and street superintendent. That is the amount of the salary allowed the city marshal and candidates are not falling over each other in an effort to land the per-simmon.

Heretofore the office of marshal has been made slightly more alluring by making the incumbent street superintendent also. But it has usually been considered as worth about $6 a month to bear the title of marshal, leaving little else necessary to earn the salary. At last evening's meeting of the city trustees the board selected N. H. Hosmer for street superintendent, leaving the honors of the marshal's job to be bestowed without alloy or incumbency upon some one yet to be selected. A recently passed law makes it possible for a trustee to act as street superintendent and the board felt that Mr. Hosmer had had more experience in road and street work in Sierra Madre than any other person, so he was put on the job after a discussion in executive session.

Any person with tact, tractability, tender heart, tough skin, physical prowess, a sense of humor, diplomacy, believing in law and order and impervious to criticism can probably have the job of marshal by presenting proper credentials at the city hall.

Ordinance No. 146 providing for the issuance of the $40,000 bond issue authorized last December to pay for the Baldwin water rights now sought by condemnation, was passed. Ordinance No. 147, designed to restrict the territory where canitariums may be operated within the city limits was presented on first reading and the boundaries of the restricted district will be threshed out before the next meeting.

Engineer Bixby reported that C. M. Sevier had not completed the work necessary to put Suffolk Avenue in shape for acceptance and the clerk was instructed to notify him what remained to be done. George R. Curtis will also be notified to put on more gravel and re-roll portions of the streets done under his contract which have become soft with the hot weather.

A resolution declaring the necessity for the acquisition of the property of the Sierra Madre Water Company was read for the first time, and also an ordinance calling a bond election to provide funds for the purchase.

"GROW OLD ALONG WITH ME"

By JAMES M. CAMPBELL

A new book by a Sierra Madre author. Just published by the Fleming H. Revell Co. Cloth, gilt top, $1.25

THE art of growing old gracefully has never been presented in a more sympathetic way than by the author of this delightful book. The title, taken from Browning's Rabbi Ben Ezra, springs from a common desire on the part of men and women to know how others look at life when the crest of the hill has been reached and the downward journey begun. Dr. Campbell's modern presentation of the subject is certain to awake a responsive chord in thousands who are beginning to taste "the last of life for which the rest was made."—Pub's. Announcement

As has been remarked before, the salary of the city marshal's office ought to be raised. And it ought to be done right now, so it could take effect at the beginning of the next term. Then whoever is selected now should be re-elected to get the benefit of the advance provided he has given satisfactory service.

The people of the little town of Bishop, away up in the upper end of Owens Valley, have extended an invitation to the members of the Los Angeles County Press Association to spend several days with them about the middle of August. They have planned a program which surely looks good at this distance. Auto rides all over Owens Valley, inspection of the head works of the Los Angeles aqueduct and various other features will serve to keep busy the party of which the writer certainly intends to be a member.

The Preacher and the Bird

A Reverend man and a mocking-bird
And the two did never agree,
As the Reverend man was fond of sleep
And the bird would sing in the tree.

And many's the sermon the night winds heard

That would benefit you and me
But nary a bit of effect did they have
On the bird that sang in the tree.

So the Reverend man concocted a plan
That was worthy of such as he,
And he said to himself, "I'll try it once
On the bird in the Pepper tree."

And he got out a hose and he turned on the juice

And he sprinkled the bird in the tree
Then he went to his bed and slept like a log
Though the bird sang on merrily.

Now I see that you wonder what difference it made!

Well that's what was puzzling me,
But it seems that the preacher had baptised the bird,
As it sang in the Pepper tree,

And as soon as he did all the tunes became changed

As they issued forth from the tree
And the bird sang nothing but nice pious hymns
So they wouldn't disturb, you see.

BUILDING ARRANGEMENTS: As advertised several weeks ago we have made arrangements with a local builder by the terms of which he will furnish the money and erect you a house at cost. You can then pay for it by the month. This makes it possible for the man with little capital to own his home, paying for it as he now pays rent. At the same time he saves from 5 to 10 per cent on cost of construction and pays only 7 per cent interest instead of the 10 to 20 per cent of the building and loan companies. This is undoubtedly the most satisfactory building plan ever offered in Sierra Madre and we will be pleased to have you come to us for further information concerning it.

THE MENTAL MAGNETS.

A newspaper writer compares the human will to the magneto of an automobile.

Which is apt.

You know gasoline when mixed with air has great explosive power. But something must explode the gasoline.

The magneto does that.

It is a little machine that makes electricity and supplies the spark that explodes the gasoline. The rapid explosions drive the engine and send the wheels of the auto going.

The magneto only needs to be started going by "cranking" the automobile, and it goes on making sparks as long as the engine runs.

Well—

That mysterious thing up in your head that we call will power is your magneto. It makes the spark that sets your whole machinery going and keeps it going.

The mental magneto, which is supplied to every human being, explodes the force that resides in the gray matter of your brain. The nerves carry that force to whatever place it is needed.

Because of that magneto you can go where you want to go, up hill or down, and do what you want to do.

Is it not wonderful?

Modern science has revealed no fact of greater importance than that of the tremendous power of the human will.

The will is supreme.

If there be in you the desire to do or be you need only crank your brain machine, set the divine spark to going, explode the force that is in your brain and—away you go.

Of course accidents may sometimes happen. You may get a puncture in one of your wheels, or something may go wrong with your "transmission," or you may steer so badly that your machine will go to smash. But—

The power is there.

It only needs the spark to set the machine going and care in oiling and cleaning and guiding.

Write it upon the tablets of your heart, bind it upon your forehead, teach it to your child.

You can do or be what you want to do or be.

Use your mental magneto.

Incorrigible.

"I suppose she's quiet when she's dummy?"

Pantages

Allan Doone, playwright, actor and composer, brings the principal feature of the Pantages bill for the next week. With a company of ten persons, and more stage settings and scenery than is carried by many of the traveling companies giving an entire evening's performance, with correct costumes, music, songs and dances, his little playlet, "A Romance in Ireland" is setting a new record for vaudeville dramas. For forty-five minutes Allan Doone and his company carry us back to the early days of Queen Victoria, the black days of "the famine," and introduce us to the landlord, the red coated soldiery, the peasantry, light-hearted even in their deepest sorrows, and to actual scenes from Old County Mayo, that will awaken a tender sentiment in every heart that has a drop of Irish blood. A love tale, with its ups and downs and its final attainment of happiness, is the foundation of Mr. Doone's playlet, written, like his former vaudeville successes, by himself.

AT THE THEATERS

Burbank

The second play to occupy the attention of Margaret Illington during her special starring engagement with the Burbank stock company is Charles Kenyon's new play, "Kindling," which will have its first production on any stage at the Burbank next week.

"Kindling," is a new and tremendously vital drama, founded on the most essential and profound of all human emotions—mother love. Turning from the drawing room drama, with its superficialities and its Parisian gowns, Miss Illington has selected a play whose locale is the congested tenement district of New York, and whose characters are taken from the lowest social order. "Kindling," deals potently with the conditions found in this unhealthy environment, where the squalid struggle for food is the one great actuating force of existence—where human nature is laid bare, and the ruthless realities of life are exposed in all their tragic truth.

The specific struggles in "Kindling" center about the young, illiterate wife of a stevedore, an inmate of a sordid tenement house. In her is that great primal instinct for child-bearing, that blind impulse of mother love. Yet she realizes that were she to give birth to a child, it would have no chance in the vile, meagre life of the tenements. This conflict between her maternal instinct and her knowledge of the inevitable tragedy, should she follow her instinct, forms the foundation of one of the most human and compelling plays in modern dramatic literature. The piece is in no sense a problem play, except as any forceful presentation of the actualities of life is problematic. "Kindling" is the simple and powerful picture of a tragically vital phase of modern economics and eugenics.

In the part of Maggie, Miss Illington will enact the most difficult role of her entire stage career. For, though simple and elemental, Maggie is yet intricately subtle, and in her emotionalism there is no attempt at repression. Her nature is one of primitive naturalness, and in its portrayal the very highest form of histrionic art is required.

Belasco

"The World and His Wife," made known locally last season by William Faversham, will be played at the Belasco next week by Lewis S. Stone and the stock organization, with Mr. Stone in the Faversham role and Thais Magrane in the part created by Julie Opp.

Charles Frederick Nirdlinger who made the adaption from the Spanish of Jose Echegaray's El Gran Galeoto—"The Great Scandal"—received all sorts of praise from the local critics for the perfection of his work and for the retention of all of the beauty and poetry of the original in spite of the fact that his English version is rendered in prose. In characterization, "The World and His Wife," is truthful as well as subtle. The people of the play are differentiated with clearness, yet all have been drawn with a thousand little effective touches, gaining almost imperceptibly that verisimilitude which in art takes the place of life, only awaiting the vivifying touches of competent actors to make them appear alive.

Donald Bowles, some years ago one of the most popular actors of the local stock colony will make his first appearance as a regular member of the Belasco company in "The World and His Wife." Mr. Bowles has been assigned to an important part and his re-appearance will be under the most favorable conditions.
